HX Halloween

Homework Express celebrated Halloween Oct. 30th with lots of guests, costumes and a cool set, designed by one of the HX directors, Jimi Glancy. Host Kelly Stevens from HOT 101 and teachers Amy Burd and Judy Moschella got dressed in their Halloween best. We even had trick-or-treaters from Liberty and Steppin' Out Dance Center stop by the studio for live TV and candy!

Callers received thank-you prizes courtesy of Thing for calling into the show and participating. Check out these photos from the show:

Viewers Tell More

Homework Express has received feedback from viewers, letting us know what they think. We'll include more testimonials from students in each issue of LiveLine.

"Homework Express is very helpful. I think it's so helpful because the teachers walk you through each of the steps, one at a time," Danielle, a 7th grader in Austintown said.

Another 7th grade caller, Patrick from Girard, had this to say:

"It really helped me to understand the math problems to come. It's a really great show because they gave prizes and encouraged the kids to come on the show again."

A Day in the Life

Our viewers got a chance to learn what it was like for kids in Youngstown 100 years ago when historian Rebecca Whittenberger from Youngstown Historical Society's Arms Family Museum of Local History, 648 Wick Ave., recently stopped by Homework Express. Rebecca showed our viewers some household items kids may have used 100 years ago – like a toys and a typewriter. She even showed us what bikes looked like for kids in the past!

The Arms Museum provides great resources that are fun to use for students and adults. The museum has great exhibits for families that show what Youngstown and the surrounding area was like in the past. And their archival library could help you with research for your next project or learn more about your family history.

For details about the museum, just visit www.mahoninghistory.org.
