Pi Day yields pie eating contest

Pi Day. March 14. The number pi represents the ratio of any circle's circumference to its diameter. The infinite number is celebrated by many various schools, and we at Homework Express jumped on the bandwagon and had a fun day on March 13. Some of the cast and crew at HX decided to have a "pie eating contest" to keep with the Pi Day theme. The contest restricted the cast and crew to eat the pie with only their mouths, no hands were allowed. Our very own Lea Nesbitt came out on top as the Perkins Pi Day Pie Eating Contest Winner! George Beshero of Perkins Restaurant and Bakery in Boardman was generous enough to donate Perkins' infamous pies to help us celebrate Pi Day. A big thanks goes out to the managerial staff at Perkins for their generosity to help make Thursday's episode of Homework Express "as sweet as pie."

HX senior to graduate in May

Sam McKenney is a senior in the telecommunications department here at Youngstown State University. He has worked for the past year with Homework Express and has gained a substantial amount of knowledge and experience to graduate this May. Throughout the course of his time working for HX, Sam has been the floor director, camera operator, and then moved into the prime seat of the director. When asked what his plans are upon graduation, Sam responded, "I hope to find a job in field production here in the area, hone my skills, and then eventually move up to a bigger market." Other than working with Homework Express, Sam also works as a clerk at the Cornersburg Party Shop. All of us here at Homework Express would like to wish Sam the best of luck!
